Mr. Jeff Carlisle has focused his practice on the resolution of insurance coverage disputes through consultation, mediation, arbitration and/or litigation. He served as lead trial attorney for a major US insurer in the Asbestos Insurance Coverage Cases before Judge Brown in San Francisco and has evaluated coverage for insurers involving hundreds of policies issued to various types of mass tort defendants including asbestos, mold, breast implants, environmental pollution and DBCP. In recent years, Mr. Carlisle has developed additional expertise in consulting regarding various types of medical professional insurance claims.

When not working, Mr. Carlisle can be found working out (meaning playing basketball), following any number of sports including his daughter's college basketball team, hiking through the California coastal mountains with his wife Melinda, or enjoying time with his growing family including his three children, their wives and his seven grandchildren.
